Availability of Treatment and Rehabilitation in Federal Prison: The Critical Role of the Presentence Report

MARC BLATSTEIN, DPM, FAF, F-SPENCE, JD, E.A. HURST & JOL AND WILHELMINE BARD
Presentence reports are a critical link between the medical and legal systems, providing judges with essential information to make informed sentencing decisions. This article explores the critical role of the presentence report (PSR) in advocating for treatment and rehabilitation for inmates, and the challenges faced by medical professionals in this process. It discusses the importance of accurate medical information, the role of the physician in the PSR process, and the impact of the PSR on sentencing outcomes. The article also highlights the need for improved communication and collaboration between medical and legal professionals to ensure that inmates receive the best possible care and rehabilitation opportunities.
